You can go to the Adobe.Q: Run External Program from java with pipes, redirecting streams This is pretty simple, but I can't figure it out. So basically I have a program that reads lines from a file and writes them to a second file, a program that processes data and takes two files with it. I need to run the first program, read from the second file and send that data to the first program's stdin, then run the second program from my java code. I can open the first program normally, but I can't figure out how to read/write from/to the second program. I've tried so many different configurations, but none of them work. The idea is to have one pipe to the process, and get from the second file to the first via the second program. process p = Runtime.getRuntime().exec("cat "/ttestout.txt"); p.getOutputStream().close(); The above never works because this only works until cat has finished. I have to keep on executing it until cat finishes, after which the stream gets shut down. So this is a "run until finished" type of deal. Any advice? A: java.lang.Process.exec() is for executing another process in the same VM, not for transferring data between two processes executed in different VMs. Use a socket or some other form of inter-VM communication for that. It's almost always the correct way. Part of this project was to redevelop some of the apartments on the top floor of our new building (Rio Grande 59). We needed a solution that looked out to the highway, but felt simple and modern, yet could evoke the strong residential feel we were going for. And that is exactly what we achieved. You may remember a wedding that was truly lavish, complete with dozens of separate guest's programs, and possibly even an ice sculpture. This kind of lavish wedding wouldn't have been possible without the help of gemstones. One such stone that is renowned for symbolizing wealth and luxury is the 54-carat emerald-cut crystal ring, which is often made to give bride and groom a marriage with those special memories that will never fade. When it comes to diamonds, they're just one of many different jewel materials. It is when you look at a stone, and see facets, that you can distinguish a diamond from a variety of other materials. A look at the 54-carat emerald-cut ring is one that takes you right back to the days of the 1920s, when jewelry and accessories were inspired by the culture of the Roaring Twenties and the 'bling' parties that were so popular. When you think about diamonds, you also have to remember the different prices that come with them. The 54-carat emerald-cut ring may be the most expensive, but that isn't to say that there aren't much cheaper alternatives. You've heard the saying 'it's what's inside that counts', and it's exactly that kind of ring that is usually at the top of someone's wedding priorities.Temporary Grooming Some horses have very sensitive skin and may become irritated by certain
