The AVS Video Editor (AVS Video Editor) Crack is a  and a powerful and easy to use. Q: Should Haskell Datatypes Define Specific Layout The Haskell data types come with a layout of a datatype. For example: `data Maybe Int = Just Int | Nothing` The fields are capitalised (Maybe, Int etc) and the types use `::` for the fields. I don't think this has been discussed so maybe I am missing something.

The layout I am talking about is of this form: tuple layout ::= (`:`)
identifier (`:`) ident1 `:` identifier2
