The recent bad weather has put an end to any type of training for the moment. The rain has been coming down for a couple of days now and we're stuck in our houses with the kids. The beach is out and we're surrounded by the sea and the pouring rain. It doesn't bother me too much because it makes perfect sense to have my Mom in charge of the kids. I never have to leave the house to go to my office or to train. I have to admit that the weather has given me time to think about what's in store for next year. I've been thinking about my goals and some of the new products that I'm designing. I'm excited to be working again, and I still expect to train hard and lift weights. I have the opportunity to meet back up with Roger Gracie later this year and to film some training with the older fighters before the October 5-6 invitational. I can't wait to see all the UFC athletes that are traveling to Brazil for the championships in the Octagon. I'm no longer a fan of the Associação Nacional de Karate-Judo Brasileiro, and I can't wait to go to the event and cheer on the Jiu-Jitsu athletes. It's going to be amazing! My best wishes to the winners of the championship, they deserve it. I've talked a lot about grappling and Jiu-Jitsu lately and that's because the competition is taking place in Brazil and I want to go there to watch. But what happened in BJJ events on the international scene was so exciting that, even though I had never seen these techniques on TV or from the internet, I was mesmerized by the BJJ athletes' techniques. It was like watching a mountain climb or like watching a running full-contact fight. You c6a93da74d
