I would like to use the Save As dialogue to open a new tab rather than the context menu. Is there a setting for this in Preferences / Options / General / Save As? If not, how can I override this behaviour? I am currently using the default Debian package. A: Open Edit -> Preferences -> Appearence -> Style In the bottom left corner, there is the button "Textures..." There it says "Show Textures in File Save or Open..." 1. First you start of the map. 2. Then you receive a map of the map. 3. From here you receive several tasks to complete. 4. The game continues until you win or die. In the end the game displays a map of the respective map. This is the way the game works: As soon as you become lost the game's map is re-generated. Thus you cannot rely on the map to prevent a labyrinth scenario. Instead the game displays the map from the beginning and shows you where you should walk. You must say where you will walk so that you'll find the exit. The previously visible map is not valid anymore. Some characters in the game are: 1) tiles that do not allow you to walk through them 2) walls with monsters 3) doors 4) objects that are not required for your survival, such as monsters or weapons When you are alone in the space where a map is, the game is very scary. When you play with your friends you can help each other. How to Play: Download the game on Android and launch. Please check your connection to the Internet for a quick start. Complete the map and let the player go. The game will save your progress automatically. The game is based on the use of the VR device, so if you have a suitable device, you can play. The screen presents all objects and allows you to press the item shown on the list. When the red button is pressed, your character receives this object. When you finish the list of items you can go to the next step. Note: • The game will randomly change the map. • The map changes as soon as you break it into several boxes. • The map is generated anew for every new game. • You can get lost on the map. Important: • You can interact with the objects by pressing them on the screen. • The objects are destroyed on their own when they become unnecessary. • On some devices the objects move and vibrate. • The game saves the player's progress automatically. • The game is free to play.
