Q: Cannot run Xcode using terminal in Mac - Apple Pay & iTunes not working I have already entered the code for Apple Pay. The problem is that, Apple Pay is not working for me. I'm facing the below error: Unable to complete operation An error occurred. Please try again later. Also, the App Store is not downloading. A: This issue might be happening if you have logged into your mac using the mactels login and then its not in the list of trusted websites. Try turning on other websites and see if it works. if it still gives the same error, there might be an issue with mactels login so try turning it off and opening up safari. Q: How to get back from an Authentication Provider after login? We had a problem where we were expecting users to authenticate using either Facebook or Google, that could be either with an App or without. After login we were going to take the user to a specific url, and then use that url to redirect the user back to another url. For a problem with the redirect url we were supposed to handle the login ourselves, but due to a bug we couldn't handle it. We tried to redirect users to a custom login page of our own. The problem is that when redirecting the user back to the original page, the user is already authenticated, so we got a popup with a valid access_token that prevents us from following the redirect url. How could we get back the user to the redirect url? We tried to find a way to do that from the Authentication Provider, since it should be possible, but we didn't see anything in the docs.
