Enga Veettu Pillai (transl. Son of Our House) is a 1965 Indian Tamil masala film written by Shakti T.K. Krishnasami and filmed by Chanakya. It tells a story that tells how the son and grandson of an old wealthy landowner, Chhatrapati Sena (C.P. Vrittas), are trying to save the land from being sold piecemeal. The film is an example of a good Tamil cinematographic work in the masala film genre, though not as famous as his later films such as Puchkhuri and Mrinal (both directed by Shakti T. K. Krishnas). His most famous film is Puri although he is also known for his film Mrinal.
