Then, the serial number will be automatically generated when you install your license.[@MelikianCannavoipf] First introduced by [@MelikianCannavoipf], a set of protocols for a [Poisson]{} arbitrary sublattice algorithm is introduced, which uses a “sublattice” version of the [Potts]{} modular graph. The sublattice uses the network architecture and topology, respectively. The main motivation for this work is to reduce a certain number of subgraphs, which are needed for the algorithm in a network with n nodes [MelikianCannavoipf]. The authors argue that this can be achieved by reducing the constant in the worst case probability and time complexity of the algorithm to $4n \ln n$. In this paper, we provide more evidence that these “sublattice” algorithms have very similar properties as the standard algorithms and the value of the constant $4n \ln n$ can be improved to $4n \ln n$.
